POPULAR YOUNG PEOPLE ARE QUIETLY WEDDED

Last evening at the residence of the bride's sister, Mrs. Geo. H. Hunker on Douglas avenue in this city, Miss Lida G. Vasse and Edward S. Lewis were united in marriage by the Rev. H. Van Valkenburgh, pastor of the first Methodist-Episcopal church, the beautiful ring ceremony being used. Only a few of the most intimate friends and relatives were present.

Miss Vasse, the bride, is one of Missouri's fairest daughters and although she has lived in Las Vegas a few years, her friends here will vie with those of her native state in expressing congratulations and best wishes. Personality and intellectual attainments have combined to give Miss Vasse her social standing and many devoted friends.

Edward S. Lewis, the groom, has been connected with the San Miguel National bank of this city for the last eleven years and now holds the important position of head bookkeeper with this well-known financial institution. Mr. Lewis is one of the best known young men of Las Vegas. He is ambitious and energetic and will no doubt prove true to the trust placed in him by his heart's queen.

Many friends of these favorite young couple have watched with attentive eyes this interesting romance and of course were not surprised when Cupid completed his task on Wednesday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Lewis departed this morning for Rowe, N. M., where they will spend a week or so fishing on the Rio Pecos. Upon their return the happy couple will go to house-keeping at the home of Mr. Lewis at 620 Washington avenue, where they will be at home to their many friends.

GROOM HAD TROUBLE GETTING HIS LICENSE

As the result of a conspiracy entered into between certain of his friends and Probate Clerk Lorenzo Delgado, Edward S. Lewis, the popular bank clerk who last night became a benedict, encountered all sorts of obstacles in getting the necessary license for the event.

Yesterday afternoon Lewis called up the office of the probate clerk, stating he wished to get a marriage license. He was told the probate clerk was absent. He then inquired of the deputy clerk if she could not accommodate him, and she replied in the negative. Then it was that Lewis began to get nervous and as the afternoon flitted by and evening came on he was in a nervous frenzy, for the hour had been set, the minister engaged, the wedding dinner was in course of preparation and the bride arrayed for the ceremony.

When the critical hour arrived, however, Attorney Geo. H. Hunker, at whose home the wedding took place, appeared on the scene with the license and Mr. Lewis and his prospective bride, both drew a long sigh of relief.

Following the ceremony, a number of the friends of the newly-weds besieged the Hunker home and gave them a rousing charivari with cow bells, tin cans, horns and other somewhat rasping musical instruments.

She—So many men nowadays marry for money. You wouldn't marry me for money, would you, dearest?

He (absently)—No, darling, I wouldn't marry you for all the money in the world.

She—Oh, you horrid, horrid wretch!

The first time a man speaks in public he probably suffers more agony in a shorter space of time than at any other part of his career. Young Frankington felt the truth of this very keenly the other day, when he found himself facing an audience of free and independent voters at an election. He had prepared a very fervid oration in support of his father's candidacy, but for the first few moments he could do nothing but gasp. Then, in response to an encouraging cheer, he began to speak.

"Mr.—Mr. Chairman," he stammered, "when I—when I left home this evening only two people on this earth—my father and myself—knew what I was going to say; but now—now—well, now, only father knows."—Tit-Bits.
